MBProff proposes solutions in the construction of steel structures.

MBProff constructs steel structures for the assembly of large-area facilities for storage, production, agriculture, services or for other specific applications. We also undertake the modernization and repair work of existing commercial and industrial facilities. The construction materials we offer are of the highest quality and they have all the necessary approvals and certificates.

As a part of the comprehensive supply for construction projects we construct steel structures with various sidings: sandwich panels, box profile sheets or other types of facade and they have various technical and aesthetic values; we also produce and install gates, window and doors, roof-lights and roof hatches.
